Enjoy yourself and help the Canal Trust to realise the dream of a fully working waterway. The Trust has an action plan to re-connect Chichester to the sea by 2011. This means new road crossings at Donnington and Birdham, where bridges currently block navigation. The plans also include restoration work at the canal basin and improving the towpath. The cost of all this can be shared with local authorities, private trusts and other funders. But it needs an active group of volunteers to keep up the pressure.

Did you know? The last cargo on the canal was in 1924.

Members of the Chichester Ship Canal Trust have been reed cutting, dredging, planting trees and flowers and keeping the trip boat moving on the water. Others repair the Trust's machinery, or work on admin, campaigning and planning. Still others work in the shop/tea room at the Southgate Basin in central Chichester.
